| 1 | Very challenging, probably the most difficult econ class I've taken at GU |  |
| 2 | Professor Wilson is easily the best economics professor I've taken a class with at Georgetown. She is incredibly knowledgeable yet is able to break down difficult concepts and explain them in a manner that undergraduate students can understand. I hope Professor Wilson teaches more economics classes (besides game theory) in the coming semesters so I can continue to learn from her! Some things that the Professor could improve: when Professor Wilson read from her slides, she read way too fast and moved to the next slide too quickly -- I had to open up the slides on my laptop and try to copy down what she was saying at the same time which was kind of overwhelming. The speed at which Professor Wilson taught on the board was better (I also preferred when she wrote things on the board as it seemed easier to understand). Also, I personally think that it would be helpful to have one problem assigned a week or something similar instead of 5 problem sets overall so that we are continuously reviewing the material rather than just when we have a problem set. I liked how at the end of the semester there were shorter problem sets assigned more frequently -- in the first half of the semester I wish we had assignments with more frequency with less problems each. |  |
| 3 | Professor Wilson did an excellent job reading the room: she always understood when students didn't quite grasp concepts and then spent more time going over that material. Lectures dragged at times (primarily due to the overheated classroom in Walsh), but I can't think of a better method of teaching the material. While the debate on the structure and date of the final at the end of the semester was unfortunately drawn out, I do appreciate that Professor Wilson wanted to offer an exam which would enable students to succeed. |  |
| 4 | Professor Wilson is really good at explaining complex concepts, she is always willing to take questions and help out students. |  |
| 5 | It's challenging subject material, and I appreciated the instructor's enthusiasm for the subject and apparent commitment to student's learning as that alone makes a tremendous difference. |  |
| 6 | I thought both the teacher and TA did an amazing job teaching the material in an interesting and challenging way. |  |
| 7 | I thought Professor Wilson was a good teacher, who was able to explain topics clearly. However, the class was a bit dry at times, sometimes just due to topics. Overall, in terms of learning, it was much more effective attending lectures than simply reading class notes. I learned a lot in the class, as a result. |  |

| 8 | I really appreciate how hard you try to make sure everyone is learning/happy even if it makes life more difficult for you and I like how you write down almost everything you say on the board. |  |
| 9 | By far the best Econ Prof I've had at Georgetown. Lectures can be occasionally tiresome (particularly because of the hot room), but she is super fair and really wants to have her students succeed. I look forward to taking Behavior Econ with her in the Fall. Thanks again! |  |
